About Me

I am a Colombian immigrant and political activist. I am a computer engineer who worked in tech for over 11 years before leaving the corporate world.

My passion is helping Latinos in the US understand what is going on in the world of politics.

My goal is to help them feel better informed and less overwhelmed, eager to get involved in their communities and inspire people to run for office.

I am determined to change Latino representation in politics and media.

What my audience says

"Where has your account been all my life? I love your format and what you do. I hope I can learn a lot from your content."

"I am a fan! We need more brave women, talented leaders who are empathetic and authentic like you are."

"Hi Sylvia! I just want to say that I admire your work, we need more people like you. Whatever you need, I'm here to help and support you!!!"

What you do is wonderful. Thank you for educating and working to expand the right to vote and encourage people to get involved in other ways. Thank you!

WOW! What an awesome account. I wanted to let you know you're making a difference. I love your explanations and how you get information for common people to understand quickly.
